2DAY

The arable farming of tomorrow starts today. Interbranch Organisation Arable Crops strives to work closely together with its members to ensure the success of the sector. A neutral platform, for common issues faced by all crops and supply chains, is an effective instrument to unite the power of all 20,000 companies and 75,000 people involved in the economic chains connected to arable farming and to build an even better future together.

2MORROW

Cooperation is needed to enable the Dutch arable farming sector to fully benefit from upcoming chances and to anticipate threats. Together we want to create supply for the constantly growing global demand for healthy and affordable food, high quality animal feed and raw materials for non-food applications (bio-based). Furthermore, we want to work together in seeking solutions for the growing competition in our home market for space and land and the need to operate more sustainably.

2GETHER

Independent socio-economic research institute LEI/WUR estimates that the arable farming industry in The Netherlands represents an added value of more than € 10 billion. The sector is able to perform better through close cooperation. We should stand united as one when addressing political issues to government or society, conducting research, communicating an attractive image, attracting employees, coordinating certification, and giving insights into market and price statistics.

The companies which grow, trade or process arable crops deserve a strong platform for common issues. To finance collective research Interbranch Organisation Arable Crops strives to, among other options, realise a Legally Binding Agreement from the Dutch Ministry of Economic Affairs. This means that all entrepreneurs who are active in the sector contribute to the funding. In addition, voluntary members and partners pay dues. This creates a broad base of support, from and for the entire Dutch arable farming sector!
